

JULIUS HUNTER Simply Amazing!

After a third of a century in the news business – covering the biggest newsmakers, the most exciting places and historical events imaginable – there’s very little that impresses me anymore. But recently, I found myself sitting in my home office in an actual state of total amazement – a state in which I seldom live.

I’m currently in the final stages of writing my eighth book. Between deadlines, publisher meetings and a full slate of civic and community involvement, the calendar is advancing much too quickly for my liking.

So here I was one Thursday afternoon. Marching up my front walk through the subfreezing winter air, my mind raced with the ideas my editor had just conveyed. So pre-occupied with my own thoughts, I hardly noticed the new insulated windows the crew from Amazing Siding & Windows had finished installing just about an hour before I got home.

Without a moment of pause, I bee-lined it up the stairs of my 106-year-old home and continued on course to my office chair, ready to put my nose back to the ol’ grindstone. THAT’S when the amazement set in.

For the first time since I moved into my home 15 years ago, my once-drafty office was actually comfortable during the winter!

One of the primary reasons I originally decided to replace my windows was the guarantee of a 40% reduction in my home’s energy use. But I never actually expected that the difference, in terms of comfort, would be so immediately noticeable. It was truly amazing. From what I understand, the unique design and materials of Amazing’s triple-pane insulated windows make them nearly twice as energy-efficient as the double-pane windows sold by most contractors. I could try to explain the technical difference, but you will be far better informed by calling Amazing and asking to see the same scientific demonstration I saw. Take it from me, it’s an impressive demonstration that’s definitely worth your while.

Admitting to myself that it was now time to replace the windows in my drafty old home was just the first step. Trying to figure out who I could trust to perform the task would take a lot more investigation.

As you would suspect, as a longtime newsmen, I performed a great deal of due diligence before making such a major investment in my home. It’s usually a cold day in August when you can find a company in the home improvement industry that is totally honest and dependable. In fact, the files of the Better Business Bureau (BBB) are just loaded with horror stories from frustrated, and sometimes fleeced, St. Louis homeowners.

My investigation turned up the fact that Amazing Siding & Windows earned the BBB’s highest recognition for outstanding customer satisfaction. The BBB also confirmed Amazing offers the best warranty of any siding company in town – further convincing me that this is truly a company that stands behind the quality of its products and workmanship.

If you’re looking to upgrade your home with new insulated siding, windows or gutter covering, I recommend you do what I did. Call Amazing Siding & Windows and get the same great preseason discount I received. It sounds corny, but it’s true. I found their product quality and service to be simply amazing.
